Adenauer Moves to 'Liberate' East Germany

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, Germany (AP) — German's victorious Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today began waging a new campaign of "liberation" of East Germany and close alliance with the West.

The 77-year-old Christian Democrat chief opened talks with political leaders on the shake of his new administration after thanking West Germans last night for the votes that put him firmly in the saddle for another four years.

Speaking to a huge victory rally in the Bonn town square, Adenauer called on his people for a mighty, united effort to release the 18 million East Germans from the "yoke of Soviet oppression and slavery."

The chancellor's consultations on his new government were expected to be short. He is scheduled to present plans for the new lineup Thursday to a committee of his party.

The new government must be approved by the incoming Bundestag (lower house of Parliament), which is expected to meet here for the first time Oct. 2.

Some sort of coalition seemed inevitable. The big question today was how many parties would be represented.

The voting Sunday gave 48 Bundestag seats to the Free Democrats and 15 to the German party, with members of Adenauer's government bloc since 1949; 3 to the Christian party, which said it would vote henceforth along with the Chancellor; and 27 to the new Refugee party formed by the millions of fugitives from Communist-occupied Germany.

The opposition Socialists garnered the other 150 seats.

Adenauer certainly again will include the Free Democrats in the government, giving him a safe majority of 97 votes.

He hinted to reporters last night that he might also continue his previous alliance with the German party, telling the newsmen the election had shown the people's faith in the old grouping and that would be borne in mind in the building of the new government.

There was also speculation Adenauer might try to bring in the Refugee faction. Its 27 deputies would give the Chancellor the two-thirds in a majority necessary to change the Constitution and authorize German rearmament if the West German Supreme Court decides the projected German participation in the European army is unconstitutional.

The refugees are interested chiefly in one thing — getting back their homes in Soviet-occupied East Germany and in the German territories Poland and Russia have held since the Potsdam Conference. Adenauer urged his hearers last night to "close ranks and work together for the liberation of the eastern territories," possibly telling argument to gain the support of the refugees' deputies.

The elections, which went off in complete calm, left the extreme right (the neo-Nazi German Reich party) and the extreme left (the Communists) without a seat in the Bundestag.

More than 90 per cent of the 33 million eligible voters went to the polls. Adenauer's forces with obvious relief and pleasure. Official statements from Washington, London and Paris expressed "great satisfaction."

In Denver, Colo., where President Eisenhower is vacationing, S. Secretary of State Dulles said the chief executive was pleased with Adenauer's victory. Speaking after a conference with the President, Dulles said the triumph was "far more than we dared to expect."

The Russians, who had asserted that Adenauer's reelection would endanger peace, had little initial comment expect to claim via Moscow radio that the voting was "held in an atmosphere of constant terror by the Adenauer police."

The Chancellor's victory was an obvious setback to Soviet aims in Germany. It indicated that the German voters were neither confused nor frightened by Communist charges that Adenauer's policy meant war and his re-election would end "all possibility of the unification of Germany."

Officers Kill Two Kansas Fugitives

TRUMANN (AP) — A Kansas fugitive was killed, two others captured and a third escaped in a running gun battle with police here early this morning.

Chief of Police Edgar Sullins identified the dead convict as Russell Smith, 26, formerly of Tucker, Ark. He said Smith and the other two had escaped from the Lattimore County jail at Iswego, Kan., early yesterday.

Being held in the Poinsett County Jail at Harrisburg are Billy J. Gore, 26, and Dennis Howard Gould, 17, formerly of Odessa, Tex., Sullins said. Still at large is Basil K. Beck, 20.

Sullins said the battle started when four men in an automobile drove up to a service station here at about 12:20 a. m. this morning. He said Officer Lloyd Hill walked toward the car to make a routine check and the driver pulled a gun on him.

"You s.o.b., get out of here and let me alone," the driver of the car said. He fired at Hill, Sullins said and the other men in the car fired on foot. Hill returned the fire, hitting Smith in the chest, the Police Chief added.

Sullins said other police officers in the vicinity joined the chase. Gore and Gould were caught, Beck escaped.

The police officers had been alerted for the fugitives by state police alarm. Sullins said the men had made their way from Kansas to Joplin, Mo., where they stole a car and drove to Newport, Ark. They then stole another car and drove it to Truman, he added.

Now Trouble With Holidays Is You Have to Return to Work to Get a Little Rest

By HAL BOYLE
HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP) — Early on the morning after Labor Day, the phone rang in the home of Joe Steady, America's average working man.

"Am I speaking to the master of the house?" asked a voice.

"No," mumbled Joe sleepily. "Jessa minute an' I'll call her."

"Oh, Mr. Steady?" said the voice. "You're the one I wanted to speak to. This is Jim Beagle, reporter on the Hometown Daily paper and his family enjoyed Labor Day. You know—king for a day and that sort of thing."

"I don't know about that king business," said Joe. "But if $65 bucks a week makes a typical working man, I'm your joker, Buster."

Dispute Over War Prisoner Swap Building

PANMUNJOM (AP) — A full-scale dispute over the exchange of war prisoners was building up today. The Communists accused the Allies of holding back captives and the U. N. Command drafted a demand for the return of Allied POWs it asserts are still in Red hands.

While Peiping radio asserted the U. N. Command withheld 337 Chinese and Koreans from repatriation, Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters worked over a list of Americans believed in Red captivity.

The names were collected from interviews with returned prisoners, from Communist broadcasts and lists and from letters written by captives.

The U. N. list, after careful re-checking, will be handed to the Communists with the demand that the Reds either return or account for the missing Americans.

Allied spokesmen said the names will be announced in Washington, but there was no indication when Nor was the number disclosed.

Peiping claimed a check of prisoner lists showed the Allies held back 228 Koreans and 139 Chinese who wanted to return to their homelands.

Both sides have insisted that all POWs who wanted repatriation, were returned during the 33 days of Operation Big Switch, which ended Sunday.

Meanwhile the eighth and last troopship to return American prisoners sailed from Inchon with 297 ex-POWs for San Francisco.

That left only 18 American repatriates in Korea. All were medical cases scheduled for evacuation shortly.

Youths Hurt in Wreck Still Unconscious

Two youths seriously injured in a truck-auto collision south on Highway 29, Saturday night, have not regained consciousness, but one seems to be a little better, according to Julia Chester Hospital attendants.

Glendon Nichols, Stamps, driver of the truck involved, was reported to be some better. He suffered concussion, fractured skull, dislocated and fractured hip.

There was very little change in the condition of Thomas Moses, Hope youth and driver of the car. He sustained brain injury, crushed nose and broken legs.

Six others injured in the accident are not considered to be in critical condition.

Third Hurricane Blows Out Also

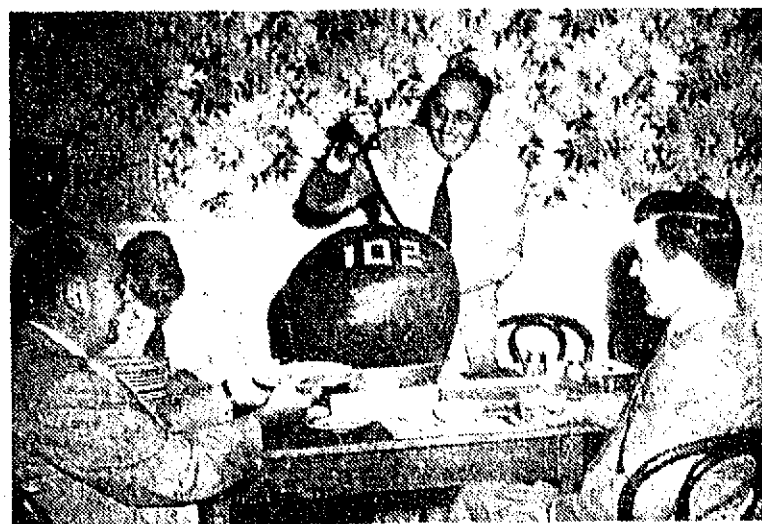

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — The third big blow of the hurricane season blew itself out over the Atlantic today after snaking across the Maritimes and leaving a trail of wreckage and distress in its wake.

Howling 70 to 80 miles an hour winds and lashing rains, the worst in a decade, brought at least one death and distress at sea and damaged apple and grain crops in Nova Scotia's farming belt.

New Hope Cemetery Working Scheduled

New Hope Cemetery, nine miles south of Hope on the Palmos Road, will be cleaned Thursday, September 10. All interested persons are asked to help.

Another Local Ambassador

A few weeks ago Mrs. Mack Stuart sent a 102-pound watermelon to a former Hope resident, John Bliss now of Chillicothe, Ohio. The above picture shows Mr. Bliss and members of his club preparing to slice the melon which created quite a stir. The melon fed approximately 50 men and Mr. Bliss wrote, "It really was delicious, just as firm and red as could be." The translated Chilean wanted the melon for the "doubting Thomas" who didn't believe his stories of melons up to 195 pounds being raised here.

Wants A-Bomb Research on Freer Basis

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

CHICAGO (AP) — Nobel Prize winner Harold C. Urey today urged giving some atomic energy research a freer basis.

He said atomic power will come sooner if free private enterprise is set loose to work upon it. And he said if that happens he'd probably invest in a small company, betting on it to help speed along the atomic age much like Ford and others did to create the automobile age.

Dr. Urey, professor of chemistry at the Institute of Nuclear Studies in Chicago, worked on the atomic project during the war.

He told the American Chemical Society that he favors changing the Atomic Energy Act to "remove the government monopoly." He said industry and inventors should be allowed to patent their own atomic inventions or developments, and the government should sell uranium or other atomic fuels as reasonable cost.

"Atomic energy does me no good at all (as a private citizen) until I can press a button on the side of the wall and secure electric light to a price that is competitive with other sources of energy."

Dr. Urey declared we must think of a new industry "instead of always thinking of attaching the atomic energy program onto the tail of another industry."

The automobile was not developed by the railroads or by the big electrical companies. It was developed by new, small industries which have now grown to gigantic size.

"If we had a government commission back in 1900 or thereabouts considering the development of the automobile industry, they would of course have tried to get the railroads to help them with this problem, and no one would have looked up Henry Ford and Walter Chrysler and many others that must be induced to help to develop this problem."

Patents are an important way of helping them, he said. Dr. Urey said he thinks "the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes has been rather slow in this country," and other nations may beat us to it.

School Band Calls for Volunteer Workers

Some 40 new members have increased the size of the high school band, Director Thomas Cannon told some 22 members of the band Auxiliary at a meeting last night in Cannon Hall.

The group issued a call for volunteers to work in concession stands at football games and at the annual Stock Show. Funds made at the stands go to support the band program. Interested persons will be asked to donate cakes and pies for sale at the Stock Show.

The Auxiliary expressed appreciation to Dr. Jud Martindale for the donation of two band instruments; to Flykett Jarrell Co., for donation of paint for the concession stand; to Ritchie Gro. Co., for furnish for counters; to Fred McElroy of the Texaco Co., for furnishing paper cups.

Parents of band members are members of the Auxiliary and are urged to take an active part in band affairs.

Violence Claims Lives of 541

By The Associated Press

More than 500 persons lost their lives in violent accidents during the nation's Labor Day holiday but traffic fatalities were under the pre-holiday estimate of 440.

A survey today showed that at least 541 persons were killed in violent accidents over the extended holiday period from 6 p. m. Friday until midnight Monday (local time).

The dead included 379 killed in traffic mishaps. The National Safety Council had estimated 440 persons would be killed in motor accidents during the 78-hour period. Sixty-seven persons drowned and 93 others lost their lives in other accidents, including fires, plane crashes, falls, etc.

The traffic toll this Labor Day compared to 432 for the three-day Labor Day holiday last year and a record 461 in 1951.

"Of course we're gratified the toll is running below the council's pre-holiday estimate," said Ned H. Dearborn, safety council president. "However, it's tragic that the estimate was as close as it was. It's a pity that a holiday must be accompanied by such a loss of life."

The 1952 Labor Day holiday violent death toll was 558, including 432 in traffic and the record toll in 1951 was 651.

Hornsby Called to Inquest in Friend's Death

CHICAGO (AP) — Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, went to the Cook County (Chicago) morgue today to attend an inquest into the death of a woman he described as his personal secretary.

The body of the woman, identified by police as Mrs. Bernadette Ann Harris, 55, was found outside the Fleetwood Hotel Monday. She apparently had plunged from her third floor apartment.

Hornsby told newsmen Mrs. Harris was a "good personal friend of mine."

He said she had been his personal secretary since 1945.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs and a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, was summoned to an inquest today into the death of a woman who was found outside a North Side apartment hotel yesterday.

The woman, described as an acquaintance of the onetime National League baseball star, was identified by police as Mrs. Bernadette Ann Harris, 55.

Hornsby, 57, who has been separated from his wife Jeanette since June 1952, arrived in Chicago last night from St. Louis but declined to talk to reporters. The coroner's office said a subpoena would be issued if Hornsby failed to appear at the inquest today.

Police said Mrs. Harris apparently had plunged to her death from her third-floor apartment.

Hornsby was notified of Mrs. Harris' death, police said, after they had found a card in her purse which read: "In case of accident notify Roger Hornsby." Police said they also found in Mrs. Harris' room a plaque reading: "Roger Hornsby, the best player of yesterday."

Court Asked to Throw Out Suit on Tidelands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department today asked the U.S. District Court here to throw out a suit by the state of Arkansas challenging the right of coastal states to fill lands underneath the marginal seas.

Congress enacted legislation at its last session recognizing claims of the coastal states to the lands. Arkansas filed a suit contending the legislation was unconstitutional.

In reply, the Justice Department filed a dismissal motion contending that Arkansas has no legal interest. The department contended further that Arkansas does not have the right to sue the federal government without the consent of Congress.

Arkansas has until Sept. 17 to reply to the motion. After its reply is filed, a date will be set for arguments on the matter.

The ownership of the submerged lands, often mislabeled tidelands, has been in dispute for many years. In 1947, the Supreme Court held that the federal government had paramount interest in the lands — a decision that clouded state claims to title.

Congress sought to settle the matter by legislation. Its act, signed by President Eisenhower last May, recognized states ownership of the lands out to a distance of three miles from shore in all instances except for the Gulf coast of Texas and Florida. In those instances, the state seaward boundaries were recognized at 10 1/2 miles.

Arkansas' suit was filed July 8. The state asked the court to declare the submerged lands not unconstitutional and to forbid government officers to pay out money held in escrow.

More than 50 million dollars resulting from oil leases granted by the states had accumulated since the Supreme Court's 1947 decision. The submerged lands act authorized payment of this money to the coastal states.

Arkansas contends in its suit that the funds were held in a trust for the benefit of all the states of the Union. This is challenged by the Justice Department motion.

Burglars Loot Fulton Station

McGill's service station and store at Fulton was entered by burglars sometime Monday morning and merchandise and about $150 in cash were reported stolen.

Owner and operator of the establishment, Sam McGill, estimated the loss at about $500. Approximately $140 was taken from a marble machine which was smashed. $10 from the cash register and merchandise was mainly ties and cigarettes.

Officers Jim Moore of Fulton, Sheriff C. Cook and State Policeman Pod Porterfield are investigating.

All Around the Town

By The Star Staff

A meeting has been called for Thursday night to discuss marketing and other watermelon problems and here's hoping something will come of it . . . for some thirty years now periodic meetings have been called but little, if anything, resulted, due mainly to the lack of cooperation . . . marketing of melons was impressed plainly on growers this year, for there was no reliable market due to season overlapping and something has to be done one way or another . . . Hope and Hempstead's fame as producers of the world's largest melons is also in danger simply because there are not enough growers of big melons . . . in fact there are only two farmers in this county that can be depended on to try their hand with the big ones year after year . . . incidentally, they do a profitable business every year and have little competition . . . folks will just buy those big ones . . . This section has no monopoly on big melons, and many areas produce 100 pounds and over and unless some definite program is formed the local melon industry is due for a rough time.

Folks around Bienville are happy that Dr. Wayne Lafferty sees patients at Bienville Drug Co., during the afternoons on Monday and Thursday of each week. . . getting a doctor in rural areas is getting to be almost impossible . . . you and I know it's hard to get to a doctor even in his own office without killing a half day.

Buddy Sutton and Pappy-in-law Newt Pentecost have taken over the Dodge Agency in Camden, and are busy getting acquainted . . . Buddy, one of Hope's favorite footballers, has already moved to Ouachita county . . . and on football, see where DeQueen's Bob Benson, hottest player in high school circles a few years back, has quit Oklahoma U.

For an inquiring reader: On Friday, Sept. 4, two Emmet men, J. G. Millner and Elmo Dugan, brought in an alligator gar which they reported they caught in a snag line at Allen's Ferry on Little River, that measured slightly over seven and a half feet long and weighed 240 pounds . . . it had been out of the water ten hours when weighed . . . until I see one larger that's the record so far.

Meeting Called to Discuss Melon Situation Here

A meeting to discuss watermelons has been called for 7:45 p. m., on Thursday night, September 10, in the courtroom of Hempstead County House.

Representatives from various agencies will be present including Lefe Dean, Phil Smith, chief inspector of fruits and vegetables for the State Plant Board.

The primary purpose of the meeting is to discuss the watermelon situation in the county with particular emphasis on marketing. The meeting is open to all growers, buyers and other interested parties.

Navy Plans Powerful Atom Sub

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is considering building a super-atomic submarine which would be as big as a light cruiser and as fast as a destroyer. Naval officials said today.

The proposal, however, was said to have touched off a heated controversy within navy submarine circles, with one faction claiming the huge undersea craft would be a "sitting duck" target for enemy attack.

As envisioned by Navy planners, the submarine would displace 6,000 tons and would be capable of a speed of 35 knots underwater. It would be the largest and fastest submarine ever constructed, twice as large as the two atomic-powered submarines — the Nautilus and Seawolf — now under construction. The Nautilus is due to be launched early next year. The keel of the Seawolf will be laid next Tuesday at Gorton, Conn.

There has been speculation that the Nautilus and Seawolf, which are similar in design but have different types of atomic engines, will be capable of making 35 knots under water. A high submarine official said today, however, that they speed will be closer to 25 knots — about one third faster than conventional submarines.

The Rains Came, So Did Frogs

LEICESTER, Mass. (AP) — The rains came too.

A downpour soaked this central Massachusetts community west of Worcester yesterday and afterwards thousands of frogs were found scattered for a mile on Paxton avenue.

There were almost as many explanations as frogs.

One popular guess was that they were carried aloft by 60-mile winds accompanying an offshore hurricane. But Weather Bureau men scoffed. And townsfolk laughed at another popular theory that a pond overflowed in the rain and washed the frogs onto the road.

Heart Attack Fatal to Chief Justice Vinson

WASHINGTON (UP) — Fred M. Vinson, chief justice of the United States since 1946, died unexpectedly today of a heart attack. He was 63.

He was stricken in his suite at the Sheraton Park hotel at 2:30 a. m. (EDT) and died at 3:15 a. m., shortly after a physician reached his bedside.

Vinson had not been ill. Mrs. Vinson and one of their two sons, Fred M. Jr., said Vinson retired last night in good spirits and apparently good health.

Vinson's death created the first vacancy on the Supreme Court since President Eisenhower took office.

There was immediate speculation that Mr. Eisenhower will name Republican Gov. Earl Warren of California to fill the vacancy. Warren announced last week that he will not seek re-election when his present term as governor expires in January, 1955.

With Congress in adjournment, Mr. Eisenhower can fill the vacancy by recess appointment or call the Senate into special session to receive the nomination. In any case, the Senate eventually will have to confirm the choice.

With Vinson's death, the lineup on the high court is seven Democrats and one Republican Justice Harold H. Burton of Ohio, appointed by former President Truman.

It seemed probable that Mr. Eisenhower's appointee will become chief justice. Mr. Eisenhower could, however, elevate one of the present members of the high bench.

Truman Calls Ike's Period Stacked Deal

DETROIT (AP) — Ex-President Truman, speaking off the cuff at an AFL-CIO dinner in his honor said:

"I wanted this administration to succeed. I advised our people in the Senate and the House to give them a chance.

"We gave them the chance and they threw it out the window. Now let's throw it out after that outfit down there in Washington and get 'em."

Truman said he had been studying the recent history of the United States and came up with this information.

"Theodore Roosevelt had his Square Deal, Franklin Roosevelt brought in his New Deal. To implement the New Deal I had what I thought was a Fair Deal. Now, the Eisenhower administration has given us the Stacked Deal."

The former Chief Executive also took time out to cut loose at Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey for liking the interest rates.

Ex-Jap Premier Dies in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) Nobuyuki Abe, Japan's Prime Minister in 1939, died at his home here yesterday after a protracted illness. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday.

Abe, 77, was governor general of Korea at the time Japan surrendered in World War II.

A graduate of the Japanese Military Academy, he became a full general in 1933.

His cabinet resigned en bloc after four months in the face of a strong nonconfidence threat put up by the opposition.

Like all other wartime leaders, he was purged. His rights were restored automatically when Japan regained sovereignty in April 1952 but he kept out of politics.

Arkansans in Last Group Freed

By The Associated Press

Two more prisoners of war from Arkansas were freed by the Communists over the weekend as the prisoner exchange ended in Korea. Seventy Arkansas men were released.

They were M. Sgt. Wilmer C. Fason of Hot Springs and Sgt. 1 C. Harold Davis of Russell, who were freed Saturday.

Approximately 140 Arkansas servicemen still are unaccounted for in the fighting in Korea.

In December, 1951, the Reds put out a list that carried the names of 71 Arkansas prisoners of war. Of the men on this list, 62 have been accounted for.

The Defense Department has warned that it may be several months before a complete report is available on the nation's Korean casualties.

The father of Sgt. Davis said he's been on "edge" since the beginning of the week when he learned that the exchange was going to stop.

Curtis J. Davis said his 22-year-old son was captured in November, 1950 while serving with the 1st Infantry Division.

"All of Hot Springs will be happy to hear that my brother has been released," said Miss Phenie Fason. Miss Fason said her mother, Mrs. Mary Fason, was so excited about the news that she couldn't answer the phone.

The 35-year-old Hot Springs Sergeant was captured by the Reds in December, 1950.

DOROTHY DIX

A Bashful Youth

Dear Miss Dix: When I go to a dance, or a social gathering with my friends, I'm always uncomfortable because I can't "let myself go." I don't dance well, consequently I always seem to be in the background. I'd love to be more popular with girls, as well as with other boys.

HARRY S.

A Good Investment

Answer: How about starting with some dancing lessons, so your inactivity in that department will be overcome. A few dollars spent at a first-rate dancing school is a good investment, built in the leisure-hour skill acquired, and in the self-confidence you pick up from competent teachers. You wouldn't be nearly so self-conscious if you knew at least this one social skill.

Don't worry about not being able to "let yourself go," as you put it. Some people are born ex-mancers, and have no difficulty at all in propelling their own personalities. In fact, sometimes their companions wish they could be so bold. Others are inclined to be shy, and their place in the world is just as important.

Show your appreciation of the ways of other party-goers, and you will win popularity with them at any rate. Don't be misled by the idea that you must be a first-rate raconteur, or an amateur magician, to be one of the crowd. On the other hand, don't be content to sit back all evening without saying a word. Be pleasant, friendly, and cheerful to those around you. Join in dancing, singing (even if your voice is a falsetto) offer to help with refreshments and pick up a few ideas for party games that you can suggest during a lull.

Your problem can be solved much more easily if you learn to accept yourself as you are, than if you try to make yourself different. An agreeable personality will lead to much firmer friendships than will any bag of tricks.

Dear Miss Dix: I believe I notified in your column that you would reveal the name of the person who wrote a certain letter. Right?

MRS. C. E.

Answer: You are absolutely wrong. Under no circumstances will I disclose the identity of anyone a word. Be pleasant, friendly, and cheerful to those around you. Join in dancing, singing (even if your voice is a falsetto) offer to help with refreshments and pick up a few ideas for party games that you can suggest during a lull.

Dear Miss Dix: I believe I notified in your column that you would reveal the name of the person who wrote a certain letter. Right?

MRS. C. E.

Answer: You are absolutely wrong. Under no circumstances will I disclose the identity of anyone who writes me. Real names are never printed in the column, as the cloak of anonymity is assured to every correspondent.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a widow of 39, living quite comfortably in my own apartment. I have a friend, a married woman about my own age, who has fallen in love with a married man. Since neither one can receive mail from the other at home, they have been using my address as a mail box. I don't like the idea, but I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings. How can I handle the situation?

J. T.

Answer: If people's feelings are hurt because you refuse to be used as a convenience, you may be sure their regard for you isn't very strong in the first place. You are as entitled to your principles as they are to be unprincipled. As tactfully as possible tell your friend you refuse to continue as a participant, however passive, in underhanded actions. I suggest that she use a post office box as a medium for her correspondence.

Demos Balk at Loyalty Oath Pledges

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reflection of a proposal for a 1954 midterm Democratic convention was forecast today among party members preparing for a showdown on the issue of next week's rally in Chicago.

While Democrats who have declared their loyalty to the national party and their willingness to support its 1954 nominees joined with others who are balked at the loyalty oath requirement in opposing the off-year convention idea.

Sen. Bill (D-Ark.) among others, said any such party gathering could only breed dissension in advance of next year's congressional elections. He said an active campaign in 1952 for former Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, has called on all party members to abide by the loyalty pledge.

On the opposite side of the party fence, Gov. Hugh White of Mississippi, who wants the loyalty oath abolished, has attacked the mid-term convention proposal.

Sen. Hays (D-NC) who isn't going to attend the Chicago rally Sept. 14-15, said he had written National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, criticizing the proposal as being likely "to do more harm than good."

War Romance Ends Happily

FORREST CUPP — An Arkansas Air Force sergeant and his 23-year-old German bride were honeymooning today after a wedding that climaxed a 3-year, international romance.

But, Rufus Hall of Forrest City exchanged vows with blonde, blue-eyed Gerda Goerach in a double wedding ceremony here Saturday.

Mrs. Hall then kissed Rep. E. C. Gathings (D-Ark.) who sponsored a special bill in Congress that shipped red tape which had kept the couple on opposite sides of the Atlantic.

For 18 months Hall had tried to obtain a visa for his sweetheart to enter this country. He met her while stationed near Munich in 1950.

The Velvet HAND

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Kit was sitting down over the city, a purple dusk that through with rain. It was 10 minutes past 5 on the following Monday afternoon; almost a full week since Libby had been taken, and four days since the second telephone call. Kit and Philip were in the living room of Kit's apartment on 90th St. Kit stood at the window and looked down at cars and wet black asphalt.

Was there someone there in the street below in warm dark doorway, in alley, watching and waiting for her to appear? Certainly there was. From the moment she left the apartment she'd be picked up and followed.

"You won't be in any danger," her uncle had declared when he first told her. "You'll be surrounded by people, in the middle of crowds."

Philip had collected the last of the money that afternoon. It was there in the candy box tightly tied with peppermint striped ribbon on the coffee table in front of the couch. The five pounds of chocolate had held the brand and that package wrapping had been speckled with a heap on a silver tray behind the box.

From behind Kit, her uncle said: "You'll have to allow an extra few minutes on account of the rain. You'd better start soon."

"I'll go on up to Denfield and wait. Libby will be returned to us there. You'll come when you want when you're finished."

"I'll come as soon as I can."

"There may not be a train."

"Then I'll take a cab."

"You have plenty of money?"

"Lots."

The whispering voice had said: "Miss Haven will wear her red coat." The coat wasn't red. It was a soft rose, a Scotch tweed she had bought with her own money three years ago. The coat was thrown over a chair in readiness. Kit got into it.

She and Philip were the only ones who knew of that second call from the people who had Libby. There was no one to appeal to. They were cut off from the forces of law and order. They had to get Libby without help.

Philip had insisted that not even Hugo should be told that they had been contacted a second time. Hugo had gone back to New York on Thursday. Every time he had called since Philip had said there was nothing new and Hugo had apparently accepted it. Kit had rather wondered at his absence. George had come and gone on Saturday night unlighted. As far as William and Miriam and Anita Stewart were concerned the situation was just as it had been from the beginning — Libby had run off with Tony Wilder and they were waiting to hear from her. They hadn't been told of Wilder's visit or anything about him. Anita generally dropped in on Sunday morning for a late breakfast. She hadn't come yesterday. Had said over the phone that she had a bad cold.

Hugo had braced William before he went. Kit had also talked to William, who acknowledged throwing Libby's green lizard pump in among the evergreens. He seemed to have no doubts.

At the southwest corner of 90th St. and Park she hailed a cab, got in and said: "Grand Central."

Other cabs and private cars and buses were waiting; it was a crowded hour. The city was emptying itself. Kit looked studiously at her driver's back. Presently she caught his eye in the rear view mirror and her heart thumped.

Could he—?

Certainly not. He had been cruising.

She directed the man to drop her at the corner of Vanderbilt and 42nd, crossed the street and went in under the canopy in the middle of the block. At once she was in a stream of people, hurrying into the great station. Progress slowed to a crawl. Down the ramp and through a choked turnstile, down more steps and on into the huge subterranean vault that was the eastern end of the cross-town shuttle. There was a train in Kit didn't so much enter the rear car of the train as get pushed into it through the open doors, one of a throng of men and women so densely packed.

The opening of the doors at Times Square was like a dam bursting. More stairs, more thick crowds, more tunnels. Kit held the candy box tightly under her left arm. Making her way to the up-town express platform she got on to a Van Courtlandt express.

The express pulled out. Local stations rocked past. She had to fight her way from the train at 72nd, through people trying to fight their way in. She left the up-town express platform she got on to a Van Courtlandt express.

Americans Hail Victory in Germany

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials joyfully hailed Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's German election victory as a massive diplomatic defeat for Russia and a powerful gain for Western unity.

President Eisenhower, vacationing in Denver, was expected to send a message of congratulations to the West German leader, reflecting the keen satisfaction felt by his entire administration.

Secretary of State Dulles, who warned Thursday an Adenauer defeat would be a disaster, said "I'm not surprised," when informed Adenauer's pro-Western forces had won a sweeping victory.

Dulles made this comment at the airport in Denver after arriving by plane for a round of secret foreign policy talks with the President.

If Dulles was not surprised, most of his aides were.

Adenauer's smashing triumph far exceeded the most optimistic prediction of key officials who nervously awaited returns last night, wondering whether Dulles' last-minute endorsement of Adenauer might boomerang. Adenauer's opponents had denounced Dulles' action as meddling in West Germany's internal affairs.

As the vote for Adenauer's coalition swelled to landslide proportions, however, officials here grew progressively more certain Dulles' unsolicited support did not cost Adenauer votes and, if anything, helped.

The crushing defeat dealt the Communists and the right-wing German political parties especially pleased diplomatic experts on Germany.

"That's wonderful!" said one official when he learned the chief of the German Communists, Max Reimann, had been toppled.

Dulles' chief aides saw the Adenauer election victory as doing far more than averting the disaster Dulles cautioned against. Even more important, they said, the overwhelming scope of the victory will serve as a powerful, almost unexpected stimulant to pep up the faltering drive toward Western European unity.

The most far-reaching repercussions should be in France, they said.

The re-election of Adenauer's moderate government, plus the resounding defeat suffered by the neo-Nazi parties, should cause the French fear of a revival of Hitler-type militarism, they reasoned.

This should reawaken the interest of France and other countries in approving the proposed European army, which would link France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg into a single uniform force.

Adenauer's big margin, they said, was in effect a vote of confidence in the European army too, since West Germany under Adenauer's leadership was the only nation to complete ratification of membership.

What Moscow's reaction will be to the humiliating defeat suffered by the Communists in West Germany is impossible to say. The Russians probably were banking more on a victory by the Socialists, who were opposed to German rearmament, rather than on gains by the dwindling Communist party in the Western zone.
